

Why should you post your papers to SocArXiv?

Because you want them to reach people, and you believe in open access to social science

Academia.edu, ResearchGate, and SSRN are for-profit ventures with the goal of monetizing your research. SocArXiv is the non-profit, open source, open access alternative. Created by sociologists, librarians, and open science advocates, our only mission is to maximize access to social science and improve its quality. SocArXiv is here to make our work better, faster, and more engaging.

While our full site is in development, the temporary service includes:

- Fast, free uploading, with access for all readers
- Persistent identifiers & citations for every paper
- Authors keep copyright to their work
- Link to data & code on the free Open Science Framework
- Easy social media sharing

SOC
ARXIV

UNIVERSITY OF MARYLAND

SocArxiv is a collaboration with the Center for Open Science, and administered at the University of Maryland

Our steering committee: Elizabeth Popp Berman, University at Albany SUNY; Chris Bourg, Massachusetts Institute of Technology; Neal Caren, University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill; Philip N. Cohen, University of Maryland, College Park; Tressie McMillan Cottom, Virginia Commonwealth University; Tina Fetner, McMaster University; Dan Hirschman, Brown University; Rebecca Kennison, K|N Consultants; Judy Ruttenberg Association of Research Libraries.

Say it: sosh-archive*

Visit SocArXiv.org to deposit papers, and SocOpen.org for the latest news

Follow: @SocArXiv on Twitter or Facebook.com/SocArXiv

Get involved! For updates or to volunteer: socarxiv@gmail.com

Support SocArXiv at: <http://go.umd.edu/SocArXiv>

open archive of the social sciences